The Moment We Are In

The AI revolution has begun. It is already here — reshaping how we work, how we think, and how we relate to one another. It is moving fast, faster than most of us can respond.

And yet, most of the conversation about AI remains focused on capability: what AI can do, how fast it is improving, which jobs it will transform. Very rarely do we pause to ask the question that matters most.

How do we, as humans, fully embrace AI while flourishing human potential?

This is a question that big tech companies are not publicly addressing, many people are ignorant toward, and governments are slow to approach.

How do we address this? What can we do? Who else is in this together?

This is the purpose of starting the HumAIne Movement. There are some grassroots initiatives and independent voices emerging all over the world. However, there is no centre of gravity to unite all who share the same concerns yet committed to embrace AI.

Let HumAIne be the one to unite.

What is the HumAIne Movement

HumAIne is a global movement rallying people who stand for human-centred AI — and empowering more people to approach AI in a way that allows for long-term human flourishing.

The movement exists to create a centre of gravity — a place where people across industry, academia, and government can exchange ideas, learn through shared resources, contemplate, and feel genuinely part of something that is building toward a progressive and sustainable future.

The HumAIne Movement is built in three phases — each one laying the foundation for the next. At the heart of the movement is the HumAIne Manifesto. It establishes the values and principles of a human-centred approach to AI.

Phase 1 – Establish the Core (immediate)

Launch the HumAIne Manifesto with a founding coalition of fewer than 20 people — from industry, academia, and government — who shape it, sign it, and carry it into the world together. This is the phase you are part of.

Phase 2 — Build Resources and a Following (immediate - end of 2026)

Develop a bank of freely accessible content so that anyone, anywhere can begin exploring human-AI synergy. The target is to have 30 resources by the end of 2026.

This includes: talk show featuring guests who embody human-AI synergy, long-form articles (open for independent contributors), social media content, whitepapers, and self-assessment tools to help individuals and organisations understand where they stand.

Phase 3 — Sustain and Scale the Movement (ongoing)

The launch of the movement with founding members will be Wave 1. Subsequently, there will be Wave 2, 3, and so on, allying more people to sign and be part of the movement.

Ongoing activities we can explore include:

- Hosting regular community events (physical & virtual).
- Organise an annual summit.
- Form local associations — in the spirit of communities like Toastmasters — where people can learn, practise, and grow together.
- Curate learning opportunities, including courses and workshops.
- Establish a standard via train-the-trainer and certified coach programmes, so the movement can scale far beyond the founding team.

The HumAlne Manifesto

The draft is the fifth iteration, being fine tuned to be relevant for all, regardless of age and background, spanning across AI users, builders, distributors & more.

Note: the following is what will be published on humaine-movement.com alongside call-to-action to sign and follow the movement.

Introduction to the HUMAINE Manifesto

We have stepped foot into the AI revolution.

It is completely transforming the way we live, work, and socialise.

How are we – as humans – taking on this revolution?

- ❖ As AI becomes more human-like, how do we deepen our connection of “being human”?
- ❖ How do we embrace AI, but not overrely on it to the point of no return?
- ❖ How do we bring out the potential of AI, and bring out the potential of humans too?
- ❖ To what extent can AI replace work activities? What should remain human?
- ❖ How are we ensuring that AI technologies serve humanity, not the other way around?

To truly adapt to the AI era, resisting AI or surrendering to AI won't work – it would be like going against the current or getting swept away by the current. The only way is to welcome AI advancements, AND, deeply nurture what makes us human – our higher level thinking, emotional connections, relationships, and ultimately, our consciousness.

This Manifesto establishes the values and principles of a human-centered approach to AI. What it is NOT: a “how-to” guide for exactly what to do/not do. What it is: a direction for decision making, which prioritises humans' long-term wellbeing and flourishing of human potential. No matter what, humans come first.

HumAlne Manifesto

We are uncovering better ways of living and working in the age of AI by practising the following values. We recognise that while there is value in the items on the right (higher efficiency, less effort etc), we value the items on the left more.

- Purposeful Use over Passive Consumption
- Active Thinking over Replacement of Thinking
- Human Agency over Total Trust on Algorithms
- Deeper Connection over Efficiency-at-all-costs

Principles behind the Human-AI Manifesto

Purposeful Use	1. Welcome AI into work & life with curiosity of how to use it to yield long-term benefit for self and the collective. 2. Use AI to enhance your human potential; utilise AI as an extension to your intelligence and capabilities, not to replace it altogether.
Active Thinking	3. Clarify your objective and outcome first to ensure initial thinking is rooted in human intention, not AI suggestions. 4. Focus on high-quality prompting to obtain desired AI output, prioritising for quality over quantity of prompts, and preventing the creation of "AI slop". 5. Ask AI to explain its reasoning and research further if you don't understand or disagree with its underlying logic; favour Explainable AI or "glass box" models. 6. Optimise for AI's energy footprint by selectively using AI for positively value-creating activities, and whenever possible, choose AI models which are more energy efficient.
Human Agency	7. Keep humans in the loop especially for high-stakes automations to bridge AI calculations with real-world consequences. 8. Listen to your intuition while being mindful of bias, exercise the human "veto" when AI output feels unkind, unwise or misaligned with human goals. 9. Take ownership of AI-assisted work as if you signed your name on it, supported by the right to inspect how it was made.
Deeper Connection	10. Keep communication "human" for situations requiring higher levels of empathy; be present for the people, while preparations can be AI-assisted. 11. Seek direct, first-hand experiences with people and places to build a realistic understanding beyond virtual experiences. 12. Allocate time and space to be "AI-free", allowing for deep reflection and strategic thinking.

Your Role as a Founding Member

Being a Founding Member is not just a title. It is a position of influencing and contributing to the movement, shaping the movement as it grows its following from hundreds to millions of people.

Your Core Involvement

There are three things we are asking of every founding member:

- Contribute to the Manifesto — You will receive a draft of the Manifesto and be invited to share your honest feedback before it is finalised. Your perspective will shape the final version.
- Sign it — Join us at a closed-door gathering in Kuala Lumpur on 23rd June 2026 to put your name to the Manifesto as one of its founding voices. Virtual signing is warmly welcomed if you are unable to be there in person.
- Help launch it — At the signing event, we will capture a short Manifesto Pledge recording from each founding member — a few sentences on what this commitment means to you personally. These will be used to introduce the movement publicly and reach as wide an audience as possible. Together, we are aiming to reach 100,000 people in the first wave.

How You Choose to Stay Involved — That's Up to You

Beyond the core three involvement, every founding member has the freedom to decide how much further they want to go. Some may want to be active contributors to the movement's growth. Others may simply want to sign and share. Both are equally valid — the movement grows with every voice that speaks for it, however that looks.

If you would like to go deeper, here are some of the ways founding members can contribute:

- Speak as a guest on the HumAIne Talk Show — a live series featuring influential people who embody human-AI synergy
- Write an article or contribute a perspective piece on a theme that matters to you
- Share about the movement in your own networks, communities, and events
- Attend future HumAIne gatherings, summits, or community events
- Become an ambassador — introducing the movement to organisations, associations, or institutions in your sphere

Based on your strengths, resources and capacity, feel free to contribute in a way that is aligned with yourself. Ultimately, it's about bringing humanity closer to a future where we fully embrace AI, and at the same time, deeply nurture what makes us human.

What Happens Next

Here is the journey from here to the signing event:

Step	What Happens	Timeframe
1. Read & reflect	Read the attached this document (Insider View) and Manifesto draft at your own pace	This week
2. Share your input	Reply with your feedback on the Manifesto; a few sentences is enough, or a voice note, or book a short call	By 24th May 2026 (Sunday)
3. We refine & finalise	We incorporate all founding member feedback and finalise the Manifesto	2 weeks
4. Sign	Join us at the signing gathering in Kuala Lumpur — or virtually — to put your name to the Manifesto	23rd June 2026 (Tuesday)
5. Share	Post your Manifesto Pledge recording and help us reach 100,000 people in the first wave	Day of & after

Many sparks together can start a fire.

With you in the founding circle, we begin.

Let's turn this AI revolution into a HumAIne revolution!

With deep respect,

Aster Wei Su Hwa
